MIKE SPENCER

Trustee

- I finally gave up gainful employment last year when I ceased working as the Finance Director of a company I formed some 10 years ago. This follows a career in business management, consulting, and new business start-ups mainly, though not exclusively, in the Textile and Clothing industry.
- I started work for the Courtaulds Group in 1967 as a very junior production assistant, after leaving the Army, eventually rising to the exulted heights of Divisional Chief Executive almost 20 years later.
- Probably the most fascinating period of my working life was the 10 years I spent as a management consult working in Eastern Europe on behalf of the European Bank of Reconstruction helping to prepare Polish and Romanian companies for their exposure to global trade.
- My wife Sue and I have always been “outdoor” people but only in the last 10 years or so, really since the opening of the Attenborough Nature Centre, have we become deeply absorbed in wildlife and conservation. We now spend as much time as we possibly can, allowing for the demands of our allotment, enjoying the wildlife and environment that the UK has to offer.
- In the last few years we have become Scotland devotees, having toured the Mainland and closer Islands on a number of occasions.
